

1674 AFACAN, Şeyma. 'Idle souls, regulated emotions of a mind industry: a new look at Ottoman materialism. Journal of Islamic Studies, 32 iii (2021) pp. 317-353. Firstly it reviews relevant secondary literature on Ottoman materialism. Then moves on to the over-abundance of machine metaphors in materialist writings with particular focus on Abdullah Cevdet's books on brain physiology. The final section presents Baha Tevfik's problematization of sensibility (hassasiyet) as an obstacle to greater social harmony based on rational conduct as a case study of the regulation of emotion in the early 1910s.
