24 KNYSH, Alexander. Studying Sufism in Russia: from ideology to scholarship and back. Der Islam, 99 i (2022) pp. 187-231. Opens with a critical discussion of Aleksandr Dugin's (b. 1962) interpretations of Sufism in his ambitious intellectual project Noomachia: wars of the intellect [and] civilizations of borderlands and compares his conceptualizations of Sufism with those of several Russian writers who lived in the second half of the nineteenth century and whose portrayal of Sufism and its followers is similar to Dugin's in some important respects. These ideologically driven constructions of Sufism stand in sharp contrast to the self-consciously objective scholarly ones that emerged in the late nineteenth/early twentieth century within the Russian academic and teaching institutions specializing in Eastern religions, languages, and cultures until it underwent profound changes after
