

A
C O L L E C T I O N

OF

T R A V E L S,
Thro' various Parts of the WORLD;

But more particularly, thro'

TARTARY, CHINA, TURKEY,
PERSIA, and the EAST-INDIES.

C O N T A I N I N G

An accurate and entertaining ACCOUNT of the RELIGION, LAWS, MANNERS, COMMERCE, and CONSTITUTION of many different NATIONS.

---

Compiled and arranged in Chronological Order;
By Mr. DERRICK.

---

V O L. II.

---

---

L O N D O N:

Printed for JOHN WILKIE, at the Bible, in St. Paul's Church-Yard. MDCCXII.

C O N T E N T S

OF THE ## SECOND VOLUME.

---

The Travels of JOHN BAPTIST TAVERNIER, through Turkey, Persia, and the East-Indies.

C H A P. VII.

Our author's reception at Ispahan; the king of Persia gives audience to an ambassador from the Usbeck Tartars; the author makes one in a private party with the king; he departs for Ormus; describes the city of Lar; a description of the island of Ormus; the terrible effects of the pestilential winds that blew here; some account of the life of Sha Abbas. His alliance courted by the prince of the Usbeck Tartars; the misfortunes of that prince; the manner of crowning Sha Sefi, successor to Sha Abbas; of an odd piece of superstition. Page 1

C H A P. VIII.

Of the customs, manners, and ceremonies, whether civil or religious; of the Gaures or worshippers of fire; of the fortune-tellers, jugglers, and courtezans of Persia; of the employment of the Persian women; a short view of the civil policy of Persia,

A 2

par-

C O N T E N T S.

particularly with respect to the preservation of property. Of the manner of living, marriages, funerals, &c. of the Persians. 12

C H A P. IX.

Surat described; a comical story of an English merchant; of the Palanquins, and manner of travelling in India; Mr. Tavernier arrives at Amadabat; story of a serpent and two children; of a man that never told a lie; of the great regard the Banians have for beasts; the respect shewn to apes; their cunning; lions, how tamed at Chitpour; an account of a remarkable set of dervises. Dultabat taken by stratagem from the king of Visapour; a description of the famous city of Agra; also of the kingdom of Golconda. 29

C H A P. X.

Of the practice of physic in Golconda; of the diamond mine; of the value and ways of finding diamonds, rubies, and other precious stones, together with coral, musk and amber. A short description of the kingdom of Bouton. 45

C H A P. XI.

An account of Goa; our author's reception there, and various adventures. He embarks for Batavia; is ill used there, goes to Bantum; has an audience of the king; a description of him and his courts; Mr. Tavernier returns to Europe; a short review of the different commodities, which are the most valuable exports of the east. 59

C H A P.

CONTENTS.

CHAP. XII.

Of the different sects of idolators in India; their manners and religious ceremonies. With several entertaining stories. 77

A View of several islands in the Mediterranean and Ægean Sea, otherwise called the Archipelago; with a description of Constantinople, and particularly of the Grand Signior's seraglio. Extracted from M. THEVENOT.

CHAP. I.

Some account of our author; his first travels; his acquaintance with the celebrated M. Herbelot; he sets out for Constantinople; arrives at Malta; some account of that island; of the benefit it is supposed to derive from the influence of St. Paul; of the air and soil, of antidotes against poison; of the different ports; of the castles of St. Elme and St. Angelo; of the invasion and brave repulse of the Turks; of the town of Valetta; of the manner of celebrating Lady-day in Autumn, and the occasion of it; of the language and disposition of the Maltese; a description of the islands of Cerigo, Zia, and Andra; the Dardanelles described; of Gallipoli, and the Propontic-Sea.

A 3

93
CHAP.

C O N T E N T S.

C H A P. II.

Of the situation of Constantinople; of its port; of the celebrated church of Santa Sophia; of Constantine's tomb; of the Solimania, and the mosque of Achmet; of the hippodrome; of the burned pillar, and talisman against serpents; also of Arcadius's pillar; the situation of the seraglio; the employment of the Greeks, on the day of transfiguration; of the black and white eunuchs of the seraglio; Turks very jealous of their women; of the hans and public warehouses: frequent fires, a cause for them assigned; adventures of sultan Amurath; of the Turkish charity; their baths; their manner of bathing, &c. of their dress. 104

C H A P. III.

A description of the various officers of the seraglio, or the court of the grand signior; and his highness's manner of giving audience to foreign ministers. Also some account of the grand signior himself and his principal ministers. 120

C H A P. IV.

Of the Turkish physicians and surgeons; of their curing disorders by fire and blood-letting; their manner of performing the latter operation. Of their loyalty, steadiness, and aversion to gaming; their abstemiousness; of their conceit and superstition. Of their learning; of their different punishments for crimes. Of the grand signior's military force; his method of raising and maintaining armies; their strict

C O N T E N T S.

strict discipline ; of the siege of Bagdad ; of the doctrine of the Greek christians in Turkey ; of his manner of going abroad, or to the mosques. 131

C H A P. V.

Coffee described ; its qualities and effects ; how the Turks spend their leisure hours ; their coffee-house amusements ; a Turkish tale ; of the different sorts of opium. Of the usage of their slaves ; their women lewd, and great intriguers. 140

C H A P. VI.

Our author leaves Constantinople, and passes through Bursa and Smyrna ; describes Nicaria ; maids disposed of in marriage by their parents, in a very whimsical manner ; a description of Stanchio ; of a very large tree ; some account of the island of Rhodes ; of the famous colossus of Rhodes ; of Patmos ; of St. John writing the Apocalypse ; and the Devil turned to stone ; of the island of Naxos ; of Paro, Delos, Mycone, and Tine, &c. of a strange phenomenon happening here. Some account of the people. 149

C H A P. VII.

Of the island of Policander. Of Milo, and its hot baths. Of Sifanto, Thermia, Ajora, Seiria, and Candia. A short view of the famous siege of Candy. The valour and integrity of a Scotch gentleman taken by the Turks. Suda described. That island saved miraculously from the Turkish yoke. 158
The

C O N T E N T S.

The History of Mr. JOSEPH PITTS's slavery in Algiers, with his travels over some part of the Continent, and a faithful account of the religion and manners of the Mahometans.

C H A P. I.

A brief character of the author ; his reasons for going to sea ; falls in with an Algerine rover, and made prisoner ; is sold by auction ; variously distressed under two different masters ; he is compelled to turn Mahometan ; one of his masters loses his life in attempting to make himself dey of Algiers ; our author is disposed of to an old bachelor ; with whom he goes on a pilgrimage to Mecca ; obtains his freedom ; is enrolled among the janizaries ; serves as a soldier at the siege of Oran. 169

C H A P. II.

The event of the siege of Oran. Pitts marches against the emperor of Morocco. The consequence of that expedition. Several of the Moors are massacred by the Turks. Our author meditates an escape. Is befriended by the English consul. Sails with the united fleets of Algiers and Turkey to Smyrna. Goes thence to Scio. Returns to Smyrna. Gets safely on board a French ship, and lands at Leghorn. His adventures between Leghorn and Francfort. Is robbed and otherwise abused ; in danger of being starved to death ; relieved by a stranger. At last he reaches England ; most unfortunately situated. Sir William Falkener stands his friend. Meets with his father, and rests from his fatigues.

C H A P.

CONTENTS.

CHAP. III.

A diffuse description of Algiers and the adjacent country; ceremonies used by the Algerines upon putting to sea; and also at sea. A sketch of their military character; of the Turkish diet, and vices of the Algerine camps. Of their usage of their women; their marriages and funerals; of their dress. 190

CHAP. IV.

Of the education of their children; of the great respect the Mahometans have for the Khoran, and for books in general; of their veneration for ideots; of their strictness in religious matters an instance of our author's virtue; story of a Greek christian and a mussulman. 198

CHAP. V.

The temple of Mecca described; and the various ceremonies observed by the mussulmen in their pilgrimage at this place. 206

CHAP. VI.

An account of the caravans in their return from Mecca to Egypt; Mr. Pitts's description of Medina, compared with that given of it by other authors; conclusion of these travels. 216

A cu-

CONTENTS.

A curious Description of some of the south Parts of Africa, with the customs, manners, &c. of the people. Collected from the Travels of Father Jerom Marolla de Sorrento, a capuchin friar, sent thither on a mission.

CHAP. I.

Our author begins his voyage; passes to Lisbon; embarks for Brazil; arrives at St. Salvadore; makes a comical mistake. Of the hardship of raising sugar; the coco, the banana, and other fruits described; of the citron, brazil, and other forest trees; of a cinnamon plantation; of the inhabitants of Brazil; of their eating human flesh; of their parrots, monkies, and ostriches; the missioners embark for Angola. 229

CHAP. II.

An account of several remarkable things in their passage; they arrive at Sogno; some odd processes here used; of the marriages of the people and manner of bringing up their children. 235

CHAP. III.

Of the situation of Sogno; the power of the clergy; St. James's tide how celebrated there; of the fertility of the land; of the suits in-law and equity; public rejoicings; of the count of Sogno's dress, music and attendants: of the garments of the people,

CONTENTS.

people, their pulse and fruits, the beasts natural to the country; our author invited to the court of Cacongo. 241

CHAP. IV.

Our author sets forward for Congo; his adventures on the way, and arrival there; his reception at court; he returns to Sogno; of the audacity of the women of this country; of the pride of the Malattoes; of the funeral rites of the negroes, as well as of the nobility; our author returns home. 252

D'ARVIEUX'S Travels in Arabia Deserta.

CHAP. I.

The Arabs and antient Britons compared; some account of the chevalier D'Arvieux, the occasion of his journey to Arabia Deserta, he is well received by the Emir, his camp described, Hassan a native of Majorca relates his adventures. 252

CHAP. II.

Our author lays a plan for Hassan's escape; a Venetian sailor apostatizes; the consequence; visit to another Emir; conclusion of Hassan's adventure. 275

CHAP.

CONTENTS:

CHAP. III.

Of the Arabs in general, particularly, of those of the Desert, their religion, hospitality, &c. 285

CHAP. IV.

Of the manners in general of these people. 295

CHAP. V.

Of their camels. Adventure of father Alphonsus. Of their contracts, marriages, and diversions, &c. 305

CHAP. VI.

Of their medicine; funerals; women; pastime; jealousy; &c. a remarkable story. 317

THE